

PENCIL BATTLE ELECTION DAY

Texas Political Row Means
Mark Ballot to Suit Yourself.

By JAMES RIBBARD
(Copyright, 1922, by The Standard-Examiner.)

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 28.—Texas will have a battle of pencils rather than a battle of ballots November 7, if present conditions remain.

There will be ballots, to be sure. But they will be blank ballots so far as the United States senatorship is concerned. Each voter will have to carry his own pencil to the polls and carefully inscribe the name of his favorite candidate.

All of this unique situation, unparalleled in state politics, is due to the conflict of the klan and anti-klan elements in the state.

Young, brilliant and dashing, blessed with the gift of eloquence and a new light in the Lone Star state political sky, was the first candidate to have his name wiped out. He is the klan nominee for the senatorship selected by a combination of Republicans and Democrats. But he was not a candidate at the regular primaries so his name was eliminated.

 ALSO RULED OUT

His opponent, Earl B. Mayfield, who won the Democratic nomination against the incumbent, Senator Cullen, and in the run-off against former Governor Ferguson, through the support of the klan, has also been ruled out by District Judge Scarborough for having spent more than the law permitted in his campaign for the nomination.

The supreme court decision that followed is subject to review within 15 days before becoming effective so that the Mayfield and anti-Mayfield forces admit the situation is about on a par with that affecting Paddy.

And, anyhow, it is certain, should he get back into the race and have his name printed on the ballot, he will have to defend his right to his seat if elected, before the senate itself.

RESIGNS FROM KLAN

Testifying before the Newwar county jury, which held against him Mayfield admitted that he had joined the Ku Klux Klan a year ago, but had resigned from the organization before he announced himself as a candidate for senator. On cross examination, he admitted he had attended several klan meetings since resigning. Evidence was offered by the prosecution to show that large sums had been raised at klan meetings for Mayfield's campaign that Mayfield had accepted money from oil operators for campaign purposes and had not listed them in his expense account. That individuals had given to his campaign, which had not been included in the accounts and that a $1300 bill was still unpaid for his campaign headquarters in Dallas.

Senatorial candidates in Texas are limited to $10,000 in their primary accounts and the prosecution attempted to show Mayfield had far exceeded this.

During the Mayfield hearing in Newwar, the opinion was general that the Democratic nominee had lost ground with the voters by reason of the money disclosures. Paddy was busy all the while campaigning the state and driving home his anti-klan and anti-Mayfield arguments.

Some klanmen have taken the position since the Newwar disclosures that Mayfield did not play fair with the klan and that they should not support him.

BODY OF DENVER SUICIDE IDENTIFIED

DENVER, Oct. 28.—A suicide who had registered at a local hotel under the name of John Smith was identified in the county hospital tonight as John C. Dowell of Boulder, formerly a resident of Creighton, Nebraska.

Dowell, according to police, took poison last Tuesday. He died in the county hospital Friday night.

His health and despondency are believed to have caused his suicide. He was at one time connected with a Denver brokerage firm. He leaves a widow and four children, who are believed to be living in Los Angeles.

FRENCH PARTY STRIFE STIRRED

Tardieu Looks For General
Election to Clarify Atmosphere.

By ANDRE TARDIEU,
Former French High Commissioner to the United States.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The electoral campaign precipitated by the resignation of former Premier Lloyd George, adds to the uncertainty in Europe. Simultaneously the debate in the French chamber on the general policy of the government has stirred up the party strife in France.

Despite the imminence of the autumn conference, and another trip of the reparations commission to Berlin, domestic affairs hold sway everywhere.

The English parties have reawakened to what it means to reject the coalition which kept Lloyd George in power so many years. Yet they also realize that to get along without a coalition an actual party majority is necessary and no indication that any party will get it at the coming election. Indeed already there are signs of a rapprochement between the Independent Liberals under Asquith and the Conservatives under Bonar Law. Lloyd George seeks to form a new party from the elements that are dissatisfied with all of the others. This requires time and as the elections approach the campaign consists largely of personal attacks and replies.

SOME DIFFICULTY LOOMS

To imagine that Great Britain's foreign policy will be changed by the coming election is folly. Bonar Law, like Lloyd George, will declare in favor of the Franco-British entente but will face the same difficulty of making the French and British views coincide on each point. Bonar Law's recent letter concerning the Near Eastern question shows the difficulty to be as great for the new ministry as for the old. All that can happen is that the internal strife will so occupy public attention that international rivalries will get a rest and become less acute.

But after the election the foreign problems must be met. By a curious coincidence at the very moment the English Conservatives were revolting against the coalition the French Clemenceau party, through Georges Mandel, was protesting in the chamber against the French party confusion. France's existing parliamentary situation doubtless is almost incomprehensible to foreigners so I will try to explain it.

PERSISTENCE REWARDED

In 1919 the voters inflicted a crushing defeat to the so-called left bloc which had governed from 1902 to 1907 with Caillaux as the chief personage and elected a Liberal Republican majority. That majority ever since has been incapable of safeguarding its victory and every cabinet has included representatives of the conquered party.

The Clemenceau party constantly has opposed the majority of parties in power and in the chamber. This persistence at last seems to be commencing to bear fruit. Last January, when forming his cabinet Raymond Poincaré followed Millerand's example, sought the support of Herriot and Doumergue, the leaders of the Caillaux party and while the majority passively let this pass at the time, now it is very strongly criticized.

The French republicans desire a government formed from among themselves and which will apply their policies which aspiration seems perfectly legitimate since they have the majority. It probably will take some time for this state of mind to be crystallized into acts. But this time can be counted by months, possibly by weeks.

My predictions of September 1921 came true in January 1922 and I am not surprised if the same thing happens again. In short, France, like England is tending to clarify her domestic policies and if this should extend to her foreign policies then so much the better.

STANDARD OIL
DEFENDS MELON

Says Stockholders Can't Be Paid Reward in Form of Cash

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which recently proposed the declaration of a 400 per cent stock dividend, states in its official publication, The Lamp, that the plan was devised to provide for financing the expansion of its business. Company officials believed it better to capitalize its large surplus with a stock dividend than to distribute the surplus and then seek funds in the open market for expansion purposes.

EARNINGS PUT BACK

The policy of the company has been to put back into the business a large share of its earnings every year, the article says.

"These now constitute the company's surplus and are represented in its balance sheet by refineries, pipelines, steamships, raw and finished products and other investments in property, both in this country and abroad," continued the article. "That part of the surplus which is in cash is a relatively small portion required for the current needs of the business."

"In 10 years from 1912 to 1921 inclusive, the company has shown net earnings of $775,163,290. Of this considerable sum $115,517,677 has been paid to the government for taxes, $222,065,226 represents aggregate dividends for the period and $437,580,357 has been absorbed by the needs of the business referred to."

The company says that the return during the past 10 years on its investment has averaged only 12.76 per cent and that during the same period holders of common stock have received in dividends 30 per cent of the company's earnings.

PINCHED FOR MONEY

It also pointed out that the earnings of the company have been subjected to all taxes applicable—income, excess profits and others—both at home and abroad.

The years of highest excess profits taxes require such heavy payment on this account, it was pointed out, that the company to finance the natural expansion of its business, found it necessary to create and sell to the public two issues of preferred stock.

The article closes with the statement that the company's surplus having gone into permanent capital, it could not be distributed otherwise than in the proposed form of additional stock certificates.

REVOLT SPIRIT GAINS IN ITALY

Armed Forces Halted in March Upon Rome, One
Report Says

By DAVID M. CHURCH,
(International News Service.)

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A revolutionary movement on a widespread scale, but not yet approaching the proportions of civil war, has been launched in northern Italy by the extreme Nationalist organization, the Fascisti, and reports tonight from Italian sources indicated that the situation is very serious.

FORCES GATHERING

"The sedition movements," as they are termed by the Italian government, led to a proclamation of martial law and a nation-wide strike or, subsequently, the cabinet sitting at Rome, rescinded the proclamation on the ground that reports from the trouble zones in the north showed improvement.

Fighting broke out at some points and four members of the Fascisti were killed in a clash at Cremona.

For 24 hours well armed, well drilled members of the powerful Nationalist organization have been concentrating at Pisa, Leghorn, Florence, Sienna, Pistoia and elsewhere.

Rome reported that an army of from 3,000 to 4,000 men was marching upon that city, but later advices indicated that the advance had been halted.

The real situation in Italy was obscure tonight and only meagre reports were received from Rome and Milan, the two foremost news sources.

There were indications that the Italian government has established a censorship.

FIGHTERS CUT WIRES

In addition to the censorship, telegraph and telephone wires have been cut in Rome from the Italian frontier had been cut in the areas where there was fighting. Belief was prevalent in Italian quarters here that Benito Mussolini, chief leader of the Fascisti, and spokesman for the organization in the Italian parliament, had agreed to call off the advance upon Rome on condition that the next government would personify the Fascisti (Fascist military) will contain several members of the Fascist in important portfolios.

King Victor Emmanuel, who has turned to Rome, has intervened personally in the new series of political troubles and is working desperately to maintain peace. It is believed that he was responsible for the proclamation of the proclamation of martial law.

UNION LEADER ATTACKS CLUBS

Farrington Heaps Abuse on Attorney General, Rotary and Kiwanis.

(By International News Service.)

MARION, Ill., Oct. 28.—President Frank Farrington of the Illinois Mine Workers, here this evening, made a hot attack on Attorney General Brundage in his prosecution of the case against the miners indicted for alleged participation in the Herrin riots last June.

Farrington charged that a movement to break unionism was being made out of the case and accused Attorney General Brundage with "openly allying himself" with "such labor-hating forces."

Farrington's charges were made following a conference which the mine chief held with August W. Kerr, chief counsel for the miners. The Illinois union head also visited the miners in the Williamson county jail and assured them the union was doing everything in its power to assist in their defense.

"I am amazed at the character of the suit pursued by the prosecution in this case," Farrington said. "I do not believe that the majority of the citizens of Illinois, no matter what their attitude may be in regard to organized labor, will unite with equally upon the attitude taken by Attorney General Brundage. In charge of the prosecution of these men."

"Obviously a prosecuting attorney should go into court as a public servant with no other interests than those of the public behind him. But in the case of the attorney general and that in place of the public he is supposed to represent, he is supported by the funds collected by the Illinois chamber of commerce from among its own members and by similar bodies throughout the state."

"These chambers and Rotary and Kiwanis club have definitely aligned themselves on the side of those who are to the friends of principles of trade unionism in themselves examples of the most compact and selfish forms of organization."

A number of miners are not to be deterred by Farrington's continued "far from it. The fundamental principles of unionism are to be attacked in the Marion courthouse."

SLAIN WOMAN'S DIARY SOUGHT

Husband Almost Mentally
Unbalanced By Police Questioning.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 28.—(By The Associated Press)—Prosecutor Ostrander and deputy sheriffs of Lake county tonight announced they would question a young woman living near the woods where the mutilated body of Mrs. Hazel Burns was found late Wednesday, buried in a shallow grave, regarding a report that this woman had heard screams from the direction of the woods early Wednesday morning. A neighbor who gave the information to the sheriff said the girl had told of being awakened by shrieks of terror.

Cleveland detectives at the same time announced they had begun a search for the diary of Mrs. Burns, reported to contain passages which would give a clue to the motive for the crime.

Search also is being made by Lake county authorities for $2,700 which Burns claims he hid in his Cleveland home and was not found in a search by authorities and for diamonds which Mrs. Burns said to have worn. Authorities now incline to the belief that possibly Mrs. Burns might have had the money and diamonds in her possession Wednesday and may have been the victim of highwaymen.

Authorities have virtually abandoned hope of securing a confession from Henry J. Burns, husband of the murdered woman, who is held in the Painesville jail charged with the slaying. The prisoner is a mental wreck after 55 hours of almost continuous questioning. He was sent back to his cell today because authorities feared that further questioning might unbalance his mind. Burns steadfastly maintains his innocence of the crime.
